

This is a book composed of five narratives that tell stories of manners, humour, Cuban legends and traditions that occurred over a century ago: The Miraculous Tomb: It tells a gruesome incident that happened during the exhumation of a corpse in the early twentieth century's most famous cemetery in Havana, Cuba. These facts led to a strong legend that reaches even to this day. The tomb is still revered by believers who claim that their requests for a miracle are granted. This site is visited daily by both Cuban nationals and tourists. The Bicycle Thief: Based on true events, shows how the excessive desire for easy money, transforms people into hardened criminals. This story offers a chilling twist right at the end. And.., where is the concrete mixer? Its a funny incident that has traveled throughout Cuba for years. This anecdote has been endowed to one of the most sui generis Cuban provinces. The residents of that province flatly denied being the leading role of this absurdity. Hair of Fire: A passionate love story, tinged with an unexpected ending. It is the typical story of the young rich who seduces the poor girl, only this time... The Two Sisters: It is said that this story led to a famous and popular Cuban saying. It is also a love story full of mischief, gossip, intrigue and other hilarious details.
